MEMORANDUM ORDER

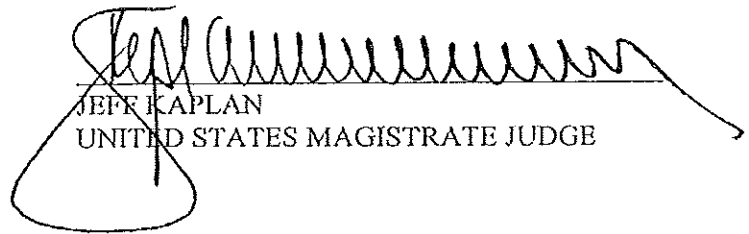

Plaintiff Olumuyiwa A. Adeleke has filed a motion for appointment of counsel in this discrimination and retaliation case brought under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq., and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, 42 U.S.C. § 12101, et seq. There is no automatic right to the appointment of counsel in an employment discrimination suit. Caston v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 556 F.2d 1305, 1309 (5th Cir. 1977). Rather, the decision is left to the sound discretion of the trial court. The court must consider: (1) the merits of the claim; (2) efforts taken to obtain a lawyer; and (3) the financial ability of plaintiff to retain counsel. See Gonzalez v. Carlin, 907 F.2d 573, 580 (5th Cir. 1990); Caston, 556 F.2d at 1309. No single factor is conclusive. Gonzalez, 907 F.2d at 580.

Prior to filing suit, plaintiff filed a charge of discrimination with the EEOC. The agency investigated the charge and was "unable to conclude that the information obtained establishes violations of the statutes." (See Doc. #7, Page-ID at 60). Such a determination is "highly probative" in deciding whether to appoint counsel in a subsequent judicial proceeding. See Gonzalez, 907 F.2d at 580; Caston, 556 F.2d at 1309. Although plaintiff lacks the financial resources to hire a lawyer, that factor alone does not warrant the appointment of counsel.

For these reasons, plaintiff's motion for appointment of counsel [Doc. #39] is denied without prejudice. Plaintiff may reurge his motion if this case survives dismissal after dispositive motions are decided.

SO ORDERED.

DATED: June 20, 2011.
